Lake Tahoe, California

Mountainside at Northstar

M25 #19, Monte Stella

• Part observation deck, part mod lodge, Monte Stella ("Starmount") overlooks California's Pacific Crest Trail like a beacon of refuge on a winter day. The 6,299-square-foot behemoth has five baths and six bedrooms, each with a personal vista onto the verdant conifers below. Inside, sleek marble counters, stained timber walls, and charcoal fixtures make this second home a cozy getaway, sun or snow.

Wish You Were in Dixie?

You will when you see this mansion on the Carolina Coast

Kiawah Island, South Carolina

153 Flyway Drive

The Basics: If you're in the market for a classic Southern estate with the kind of modern amenities you've grown accustomed to in the city, this palatial manor on the South Carolina coast will scratch that itch. Every room in this five-bed 7,000-square-foot home—tucked comfortably into a five-acre lot of scrub pines and palmettos—is replete with Sonos audio, Lutron dimmers, and hand-finished French oak floors, and its three floors are naturally lit by panoramic portrait windows. In addition to the seeming endlessness of the interior, there are nearly 3,000 square feet of deck space for outdoor gatherings on those warm Lowcountry nights.

The Extras: From the observation deck on the top floor, you can take in the unblighted night sky to the soundtrack of crashing waves. During muggy summer days, the infinity pool might be the only body of water worth trekking to. When sandy expeditioners return from the beach, they can make a beeline for the gourmet kitchen, where two Sub-Zero refrigerators store the refreshments. There's room to comfortably seat eight guests around the oversize granite island.

The Lifestyle: The Osprey Beach development on Kiawah Island is a terra-formed marvel of dunes and sawgrass. The lush, natural landscapes across this seven-mile-long island obscure the constant activity and amenities of award-winning developments such as Cassique. Just around the corner of every serene walking path and road are top-flight tennis facilities, kayaking, clay pigeon shooting ranges, and world-famous golf courses (the PGA Championship is slated to return to the island in 2021). $10,500,000, kiawahisland.com
